DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. The use of the trademark Daylight 6400K, Truetone 5000K, Cool White 4100K, Warm White 3700K has been noted in this application. It should be capitalized wherever it appears and be accompanied by the generic terminology.

Although the use of trademarks is permissible in patent applications, the proprietary nature of the marks should be respected and every effort made to prevent their use in any manner which might adversely affect their validity as trademarks.

Response to Amendment

2. Applicant's request for reconsideration of the finality of the rejection of the last Office action is persuasive and, therefore, the finality of that action is withdrawn.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim 29 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Stephens (5,890,7930) and further in view of Haenen et al.

Stephens discloses the claimed invention except for the recitation of the fluorescent bulbs being floodlights and having different color temperatures. Stephens discloses a light source assembly having a plurality of fluorescent light bulbs where in light source assembly is operable for selectively lighting the plurality of fluorescent bulbs, and a carrying case operable for storage of the light sources and a tripod assembly connected to the light source assembly. Haenen discloses a lighting assembly that has different fluorescent lamps with different color temperatures to selectively mix the light emitted by the lamps to produce a desired light emission. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to implement the teaching of Haenen's fluorescent lamps in the device of Stephens to provide Stephens with a the ability to produce a desired and changeable light emission which as taught by Haenen is desirable for applications that require the light emission from a lighting device to be within a certain light temperature range. With regards to the fluorescent lights being floodlights, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to substitute the fluorescent lamps of Stephens with floodlight fluorescent lamps since floodlight lamps for use in applications that require light to be emitted with greater intensity to cover a greater area to be illuminated is old and well known in the art. With regards to the light bulbs being selected from a group comprised of Daylight 6400K, Truetone 5000K, a Cool White 4100K and a Warm White 3700K, selecting the best colored lamp for a desired application is based on personal preference factors associated with light and color and since the spectral characteristics of the aforementioned bulbs are readily known in the illumination art, to chose one or all of these bulbs for a desired application would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill for a desired lighting application. Furthermore applicant has not provided any evidence that the use of one or all of these bulbs produces any unexpected results and simply states that the use of these bulbs in the instant application are based on personal preference. Furthermore, it has been held that where the general conditions of a claim are disclosed in the prior art, discovering the optimum or workable ranges involves only ordinary skill in the art. In re Aller, 105 USPQ 233.

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claims 27 and 28 are allowed.
6. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: The prior art cited does not teach the combination of a plurality of compact fluorescent light bulbs, a tripod assembly connected to the light source assembly, a translucent diffuser assembly connected to the light source assembly, an umbrella assembly connected to the light source assembly.
